

BRIGHT EMBERS: Journaling MY Journey

Registration Form

The Bright Embers: Journaling MY Journey project is open to any person, of any age, who would like to record their own personal bushfire experience and/or memories.

This includes:

- People who were directly impacted upon by the fires.
- Volunteers and workers involved in the immediate relief, or the on-going recovery.
- Those who had family or friends in directly impacted areas.
- People living in areas that were not impacted upon by the February 2009 fires but are known as "High Risk" areas – those who know the devastation could easily have occurred in their own area.
- Those living in other states or countries that experienced the fires through newspaper, television or radio.
- City dwellers or suburbanites who saw and smelt the smoke from their homes.

In other words ... this project is open to EVERYONE!

- This is YOUR personal recording of YOUR Bushfire experience/memories – we will help you record YOUR story using the medium you prefer.
 - If you do not have your own equipment photographic and recording devices will be available for your use.
 - Writing and art workshops will be available for those interested in attending.

An exhibition of participants work will be held in late 2010. All participants will be invited to have their work included in this exhibition. Participants may accept or decline this invitation as they wish – this is your own personal work and we recognise and understand that you may or may not want to share this with the general public.

Participants will be advised of the exhibition dates by email or mail later in 2010.
